

Twenty-Eight Female Executives Representing Phancorp, World Vision, Wal-Mart and Others Receive Global Awards

24 June 2009 – San Francisco – Global EXEC Women recognized five female recipients and twenty-three honorees, semi-finalists, and finalists through the International Women of Influence Awards™. AT&T and Exhibits South sponsored the awards during the Women's Business Enterprise National Council (WBENC) Conference in San Francisco.

The International Women of Influence Awards™ are an initiative from Global EXEC Women's International Council, which is comprised of Consul Generals, trade commissioners and country representatives from Australia, China, England, Ireland, Italy, Mexico, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Turkey and the United Kingdom. They are committed to promoting female executives' leadership roles in global business. The International Women of Influence Awards™ seek to honor women who are changing the way global business is conducted. These women have reached international status for outstanding work in their fields and are known for their leadership and achievements.

"These dynamic leaders are influential in their respective fields and community. They are all powerful examples of women conducting international business and we are proud to honor them," remarked Virginia A. Bradley - Founder, CEO and Publisher of Global EXEC Women Magazine. "Since participation in this event is expanding, we are honoring one recipient for each country represented."

The judging process begins with a review of the qualified nominees by members of the Global EXEC Women International Council. The final judging is completed by a team of female business executives, which include: Robin Bienfait, Chief Information Officer, Research In Motion (RIM) Blackberry; Vicki Hamilton, Senior Vice President, Turner Broadcasting System and Karen Robinson, Serial Entrepreneur, who has raised 70 million in venture capital and is currently serving on multiple private and global boards.

"I am truly enthralled to have participated in the awards process this year. The judging was extremely competitive due to the high caliber of our nominees," stated Global EXEC Women judging committee chair, Vicki Hamilton who is also Senior Vice President, Turner Broadcasting System, Inc.

About Global EXEC Women

Global EXEC Women Magazine is an award-winning, multi-lingual, online and print publication that features female business executives, women business owners and entrepreneurs that conduct international business. Last year, the publication was selected to be included in the seat pocket of Delta Air Lines' inaugural flight to China.

We connect female business and technology executives with other women of influence for interactive forums and a perspective for regional, national and international business. We recognize women around world with our International Women of Influence and Luminary Awards™. The 2010 awards will be presented in Cairo and other locations.
